

Data Safety Summary

Effective Date: April 28, 2026 · NexGenSpec LLC

Local-First by Design

NexGenSpec is local-first. Inspection content — defects, photos, signatures, LiDAR scans, notes, client info, agent info, calendar events, invoices, and PDFs — is stored privately on your iPhone or iPad in the app's sandboxed storage. Other apps cannot read it. NexGenSpec LLC does not receive copies and has no server-side database of inspection data.

What Leaves Your Device

The only data sent off-device is:

- Your account login (email and an encrypted password, or your Apple ID identifier if using Sign in with Apple), stored in Firebase Authentication.
- Anonymized crash reports sent to Firebase Crashlytics if the app crashes. No personal data, no inspection content.

What We Do Not Do

NexGenSpec LLC does not sell, rent, or share your data. No third-party advertising. No marketing trackers. No server-side database of your inspections.

iCloud (Optional)

If you enable iCloud Backup in iOS Settings, your device — including NexGenSpec's app data — is backed up to your personal iCloud account. Apple encrypts and manages that backup. NexGenSpec has no access.

Calendar (Optional)

If you grant Calendar access, NexGenSpec writes events to a calendar you choose, including the property address, client contact details, agent contact details (if provided), and the NexGenSpec job ID. This is written only to your local calendar and to any calendar accounts (iCloud, Google) you have enabled on your device. NexGenSpec does not receive this data. Deleting an inspection in NexGenSpec also deletes its calendar event. Calendar access is entirely optional — all other app features work without it.

Subscription

NexGenSpec subscriptions are sold and billed by Apple via the App Store. NexGenSpec receives notification of subscription status only and does not collect or process payment information. Manage your subscription in iOS Settings → Apple ID → Subscriptions.

Your Control

- Delete the app to remove inspection data from your device.
- Email contact@nexgenspec.com to delete your login account.
- Manage your subscription in iOS Settings → Apple ID → Subscriptions.
